Abstract

Intuitives are people who can read minds. Some call themselves spiritual. Centuries ago they were called witches. They cannot tell the future, no one can. Whether they can contact the dead is doubtful. They have an important role to play in releasing stresses that cause chronic disease and are a valuable resource in medical science.

Origins

Many creatures have the ability to communicate without speech. They can tell what others of their species are thinking and respond as a group. Humans lost that ability when they evolved from their predecessors, probably triggered by thunder storms in east Africa 80,000 years ago. Without intuition, language was needed. It was also the start of tool making and with the ability to discuss and analyse, innovations developed. People were segregated by intelligence into leaders and workers. Power was held by those who were physically strong and clever. Muscles remained important right up to the time of gunpowder. Wielding a sword required strength. Pulling the trigger of a gun is easy. Gaining power in a group was done by choosing who to kill.

Meanwhile, some humans retained the ability to read the minds of others. It may be that most are female. They also have other characteristics such as being useless at managing their finances and social relationships. Invariably, they are kind and want to help others.

There is a continuum from open to closed minded with intuitives at the extreme of the open end and bureaucratic closed minds at the opposite extreme. The obedient, unthinking types who would shepherd victims into a gas chamber are as unlovable in society as the leaders who command them. How such people contribute is indicative of the lack of empathy in groups where communications have failed.

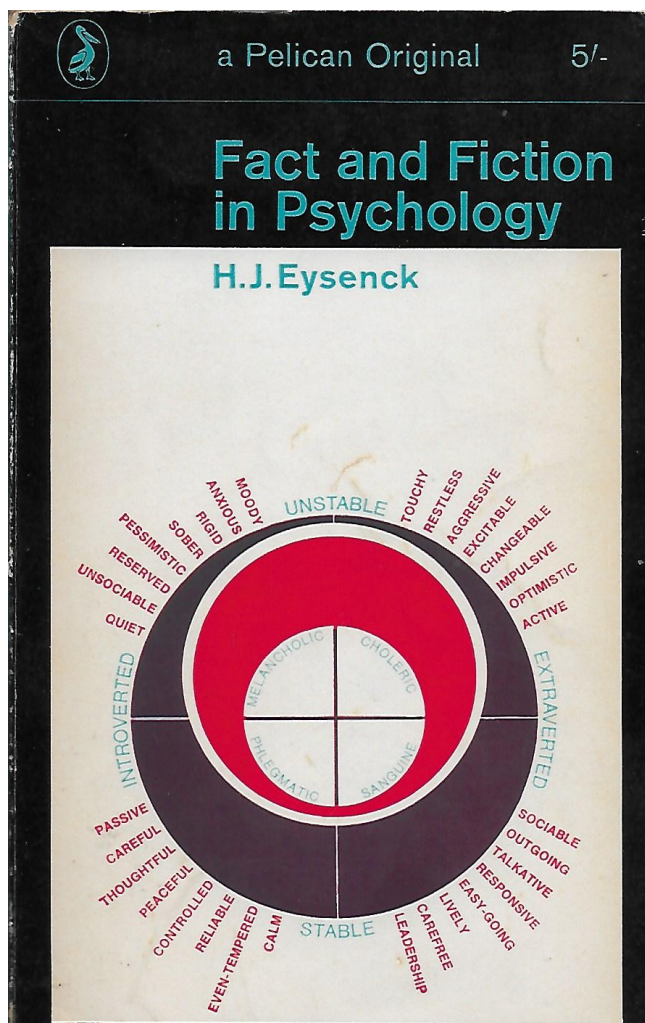

War is always caused by madness. It is never necessary for one group to collectively attack another group. If geographically separate groups collaborated, they could both prosper but often there is a leader on one side, maybe both sides, who says that mass killings are the remedy. By charisma and using the bureaucratic blockheads, the leader consolidates power until death brings their dominance to an end.

In today's world, wars are encouraged by leaders who have no concern for individuals. Are these leaders sane? Obviously not but a medical opinion is prohibited even though that leader is almost certainly receiving medicines to boost their strength and mental ability. Where a leader displays erratic behaviour, there will be drug enhancements adjusted daily or hourly. Somewhere in the background is a doctor pulling in a lot of money hoping to escape to anonymity before his victim's inevitable heart attack.

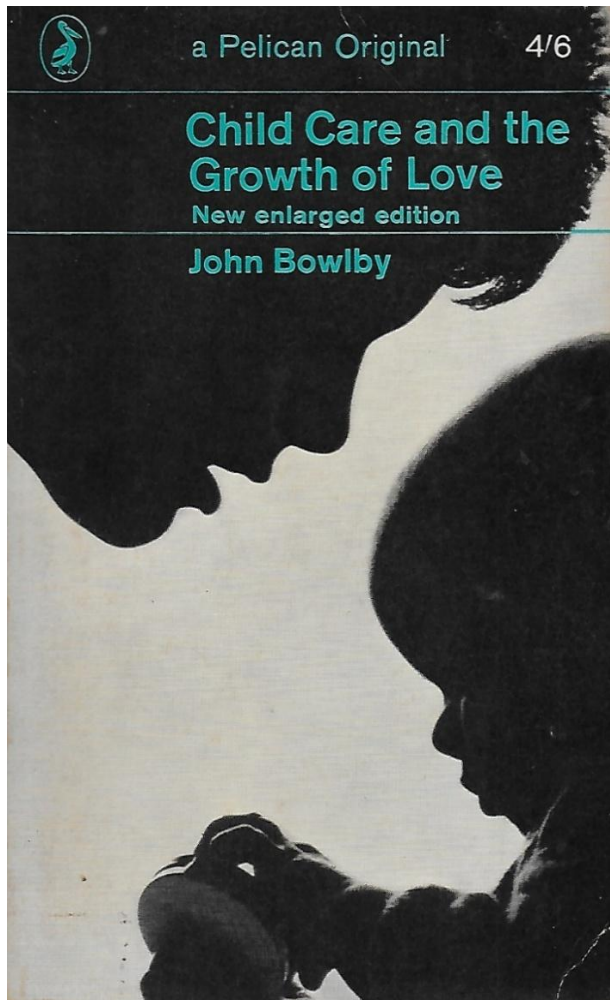

Personality types

The classic text on personality was by Hans Eysenck published in 1965.

Eysenck's famous diagram of personality types illustrated the front of the book. Nowhere does he identify the intuitive. This is a significant omission. He was not looking for them so did not see them. To me they are important because they can reveal the cause of emotional trauma in a patient. Such troubles concerned Eysenck and he writes about traffic accidents and finds an overlap with crime and refers to mental failure without looking for a cause of the failure. Being aware of the psychology and sociology was something in which I held an interest until recently and then it all came back to me as a practical project. In the meantime, I had been an engineer and property developer. To repair a broken machine or leaking roof you must find the cause of the problem because only when the cause is dealt with can the problem be solved. So what is the cause of cancer? Intellectually combining engineering with psychology and stumbling across intuitives produced the answer.

The answer lay in childhood and another book from my student days is this classic by John Bowlby. The title says it all. The baby is raw material. With love, the child grows into a well socialised adult capable of parenting with love. When there is no love, everything goes wrong. An intuitive will be able to see it and help the victim to admit it.

The intuitive is usually female. Why female is obscure and subject to further observation. They know what another person is thinking and can also tell just by looking where there is illness in a person be it cancer or wounds, internal or external. They may be well educated and have been in a relationship and had children. At some stage, their role in life is unrewarding and they want to help others to the extent that they leave their everyday commitments and dash off to help others probably adding to the confusion at the scene of chaos.

Sapiens Shield

The importance of intuitives appears in the Sapiens Shield plan where they will meet with (interview) those who are ill to discern how to help.

Sapiens Shield requires everyone to be checked every six months so that disease can be stopped before it develops by treating with the CellSonic VIPP (very intense pressure pulse) machine. A diagnosis and cure can be done in twenty minutes with the people attending at appointed times. At a rate of three an hour, 8,000 can be checked in six months.

There are three categories of people in all communities with each amounting to about a third: those with nothing wrong, those with something wrong and they know it and those with something wrong but they don't know it. For the healthy ones, they are dismissed and told to come back in six months. Those with problems are given treatments, advised to stop taking any drugs and assigned to the CellSonic nurses at the clinic who will provide the treatments using biophysics, not the biochemistry of drugs which are failing to cure and debilitating the brain. For a person who is unaware of a problem, usually revealed as a low voltage area, it is treated, checked again and their card marked accordingly. If they ask what it was they are told it was nothing and it has been corrected.

That person is then sent to the next room to meet Grannie, an intuitive. We call her Grannie because she may well be a grandmother, sweet and smiling and ready to listen. Grannie can see from the mark on the person's card and by her own intuitive sense that this person had a problem five minutes ago and is from a dysfunctional family. Chronic disease is almost always caused by stress of the rejection type. Constant, inescapable, nagging and criticism reduces any person to shreds. Their immune system fails because they do not sleep properly letting mutations develop leading to cancer, diabetes, arthritis, constant pain and even brain diseases.

Human cells replicate on average every six weeks. Less in some organs and slower in others with an average of six weeks. There are billions of them and some will not be exact copies of what was there before, they will be mutations. At night with thorough sleep, the immune system finds the faulty cells and destroys them. They have a voltage across the membrane of only 10 millivolts whereas it should be 75 millivolts for a healthy cell. The next morning, the person starts the day clean and the process begins again. Haultiwanger explains the cell correction in his paper The Electrical Properties of Cancer Cells.

Ants and sharks existed for millions of years with organs that have stabilised but human organs are new and not yet reached that stage so our survival depends on the immune system.

Grannie is smiling and ready to listen. The person sees this and it may be their only opportunity in a week or more to talk to anyone without being snapped at. Although the diagnose and cure was done quickly, a conversation with Grannie can run on as long as it takes which may be an hour or more. Plenty of intuitives are needed in every Sapiens Shield clinic. The purpose is to find the cause of the stress. It may go back to childhood and we know of cases where a person has been born with cancer. The stress was with the mother whose relationship with her mother was fraught. Not until the cause of the stress is removed can a person be healthy. CellSonic can correct the voltage, kill infections and start the growth of new tissues and can repeatedly do all this but for the person to remain healthy and the stress to be expunged, only intuition will reveal it. No drugs are to be used and, of course, surgery is nonsense. Brain lobotomy should be illegal. It may be already.

This where artificial intelligence (AI) is useless. It depends on accumulated data which is not available for a unique, troubled individual. Eventually, a picture emerges of people haunted by rejection but AI can never advise a person it has never met and with whom it cannot converse. Wild claims are being made for AI and this is not one.

Grannie's objective is to get an invitation to help. She must not criticise. Her empathy tells her what the problem is and guides questions. Let the victim spill it out and Grannie will focus on the issues that disrupt the immune system.

Crime

Befriending goes beyond healing. It can help to stop crime. No one is born a criminal. They become criminals in a dysfunctional family. The neighbours know where the naughty kids are but cannot invade. Only by invitation can society intervene and that has to be done carefully lest it increases aggression. Prisons and police are useless. Crime carries on and prison is said to be where criminals learn more. Disrupting the vicious circle will take more than one generation but the process has to start somewhere. The church and local community used to support malingers but not now with privacy laws and families dispersed, often amongst different countries.

Grannie will listen, smile and coach. She has to be backed up by the community. It can be observed that the problems begin with matching unsuitable people together. In much of the world, couples get together by their own choosing. Even where parents used to arrange marriages, that is giving way to suggestions from parents subject to the boy and girl agreeing. The divorce rates show that the ability to decide in early twenties on a spouse is less than making similar decisions in the thirties. Balance this against the medical fact that a girl's ideal breeding age is mid-teens. Humans can blame those thunderstorms that disturbed their pragmatic lifestyle as hunter-gatherers. Brain storming must now provide the solutions - CellSonic, Sapiens Shield and intuitives.

Conclusion

For all the intuitives' insights, these wonderful people are a danger to themselves. It seems to be a fact that they fail to manage their finances. This is what we observe and cannot explain it. Intuitives are intelligent but money moves through their hands like sand through a sieve, not for their own benefit but to help others. Sapiens Shield needs intuitives. Only these empathetic, compassionate people can talk with shattered patients about personal troubles. The medical establishment so far ignores them and that is a fundamental fault in a system that depends on pharmaceuticals for healing. The managers of Sapiens Shield must look after the intuitives, allocating them money and accommodation to relieve them of decisions they seem unable to handle. In return, insights are provided that cannot be obtained any other way.

Intuitives cannot foretell the future and no one can. Claims to contact the dead are spurious and more to do with reading the thoughts of surviving relatives than seeing into another world.
